

Junkyard Golf Course and Community Building Event with Potluck

Contributed by Bernie DeKoven
 Saturday, 28 April 2007
 Last Updated Sunday, 03 June 2007

Build Community with Fun

-

Work together to build a mini-golf course, out of "junk"

-

Play together, cross-ability, cross-age, cross-border
 - Celebrate each other and the planet

- Laugh alot
 click this to watch the video - taken at the Leaping Lizards Family Fun Day

Building a mini-golf course out of found material. Who would have thought that such a simple activity could have such delightful consequences? Everybody can play. There are calls to creativity and collaboration, invitations to inclusion, incentives for sharing, and it all somehow connects people to each other and to the world they are creating together.

Download the complete, do-it-yourself instructions. Illustrated. A PDF file. All ten pages. For you. For whatever you want to donate. {snippet Paypal1}

And here, for your edification and amusement - "Golf, according to the Junkmaster" - play it for everyone you invite.

Use them both in the best of fun.

Use them with your family, your neighbors, the people you work with, your customers, your school, your church and synagogue and temple and mosque, your company and their families.

Use them to help make the world a little more fun.

On the other hand, if you want to bring this kind of fun and learning to places where there are no kids to permit and inspire all this creative silliness, there's the Junkyard Golf Conference Kickoff Kit - a carefully structured learning game, designed specifically to increase the effectiveness of a business conference, with written instructions and objectives and large packages of clean, playworthy, carefully selected, industrial junk.

And then again, if are working with kids, at, for example, a youth conference, the Junkyard Golf Conference Kickoff Kit can be a powerful tool for getting them working and thinking together.